Dear Kingsman,

This is the land gilded entirely by the sunshine in morning as it overcomes the blackness of the shadows. This sanctified building shares the sacred colors: black and gold. And as we coat ourselves in the pennants of these colors, we are from the light of the sun. We are of the Freed Field, our battlefield. For whom-ever dares rouse our hallowed name, we ignite in combat within this grassland for a promising victory. We are the pride that reigns all over this kingdom. We are distinctive; we are not perfect, yet that is what makes us bittersweet. We are bittersweet for that is what makes our memories golden. And, until the end of time, we will always be the bittersweets; however, that is just an alternative name to who we are. We are the gifted: from the harmonic sounds of the orchestra to the arous-ing reverberation of the band. We are the ones who may rise and fall in academics, but never stay fallen. We are every brick, every wall, every metal, and every hint of memory in this kingdom. And now and forever we will cry and shout with strong dignity and no remorse: We are the mighty Kingsmen. We are mighty for Penn.

Remember, Penn is more than a school of classrooms and teachers; it is a land of heart and togetherness. It is a society of nurture and nature, people and places. Though Penn is giant compared to most, the unique identities of each student is what makes this place so great. The question is: When one captures a glimpse of life, where are you?

Students,

I know that your memories of Penn High School will become less important as you enter college, military, or the work-force. Your high school memories will continue to fade as you start families and careers. I am confident however that your memories of your teachers will remain forever. Penn is such a special place because of the great teachers who dedicated their lives to your success. Please pay forward this unselfish dedication first with your success and then by supporting the teachers in the community in which you live.

the IRON MEN

Although there was speculation that the Kingsmen weren't going to have an impressive season after the first two losses against Valparaiso and Ben Davis, the Kingsmen proved themselves by winning NIC and making it to Semi-State. The Kingsmen beat the Marian Knights, St. Joseph Indians, Riley Wildcats, Mishawaka Cavemen, Elkhart Central Blazers, and Adams Eagles to win the NIC. They continued into sectionals playing against Elkhart Central, Mishawaka, and Laporte High School. Going further than last year, they beat Merrillville, winning the Regional title. With a devastating loss at Semi-State against the Carmel Greyhounds, the Kingsmen ended an astounding football season for Penn.

Andrew Stanley sacked St. Joseph's quarterback.

Brandon Reeves, Shaun Davis, Eric Bollinger, et al.

"My 8th grade year seeing the Kingsmen make it to the dome, made me want to be a part of the team and Wild Bunch. It's a great atmosphere that many don't experience. So I take great pride in being a part of a legacy as we seniors write our chapter," said Jose Carrillo. "MY BIGGEST inspiration is my brother, because he taught me how to push myself to be the greatest I can be," said Garrett Dikos. LEVAN SAID his most memorable game was, "Mishawaka, second round of sectionals, because they were talking about how the first time was a fluke and they were going to take us out." KYLE MAROSZ mentioned that his most memorable game this year was, "The St. Joe game, 'the streak ends here!' Yeah, right..."

Tackling The Competitionnn

This year the junior varsity football team led Penn to victory by ending their season undefeated. The freshmen also followed the tradition of Penn football by not losing a game either. In order to have a successful season the players put many hours of practice in. During the summer the players gave up some of their vacation to come and practice. Once school started the teams would have practice Tuesday through Thursday, and would practice anywhere from two-and-a-half to three hours each day. Practice was also held on Saturdays which they called "bumps and bruises." "This season has been a lot of fun and awesome," said Gary Downey, junior. "Playing with buddies is an experience you don't want to waste." "This season was great and amazing," agreed Nate Whitaker, freshmen. "I'm really going to miss Coach Doi."

...And All the Kings Men

Jason Dubois, 9

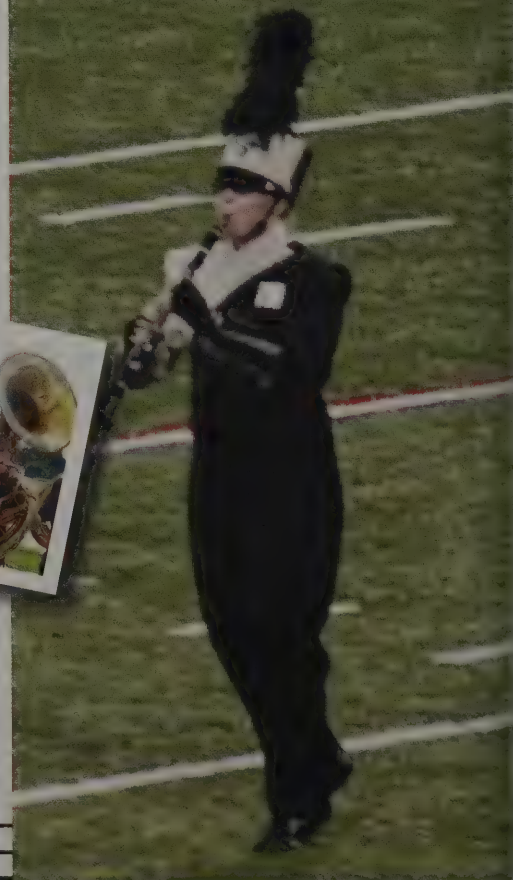

The Penn Marching Kingsmen were always at football games supporting the team and getting the fans pumped up. During half time they performed their show, which they also performed during competitions. The Marching Kingsmen's show was "...And All the Kings-Men," which featured sword fights between the guard members and a couple different crownings.

The Marching Kingsmen were led by drum majors Daniel Burket and Keaton Bloom, seniors, and juniors Cassie Mills and Steven High.

Samantha Harvey, freshman

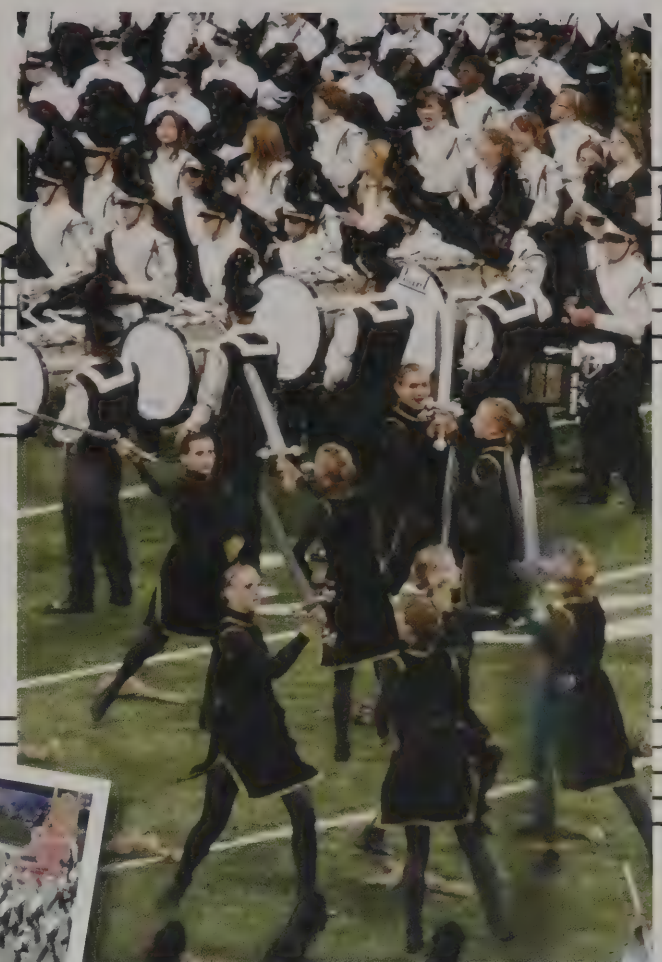

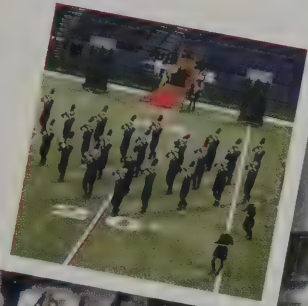

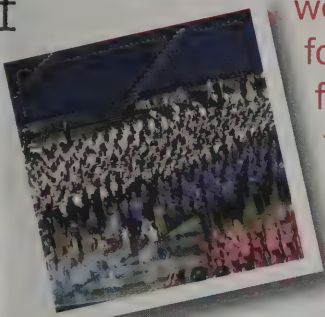

Abby Sroda, sophomore, knighted a fellow Colorguard member during the show. In the Marching Kingsmen's show the Colorguard was a big aspect of the show. They were the ones who performed all of the sword fights and knightings that helped everybody to better understand the show. Besides the Colorguard fighting each other the band members battled each other.

During the show the band was split into two sides for the fights: woodwinds versus the brass. This year the band competed in eight different competitions, including district, regionals, semi-state, and state.

They ended up placing fourth in semi-state, and sixth in state. "This year was an amazing year," said Cassie Mills, junior. "It was such a fun show and I love all the people in band!"

We got spírit

Under the direction of a new varsity coach, Rita Szweda, the 2008-2009 football cheerleaders went through many changes. One was that the junior varsity squad, led by coach Kristin Reynolds, was separate from the varsity squad on Friday nights. The freshmen had a great first year with their new coach as well, Christine Crook. The varsity cheered all the way to semi-state at Carmel High. JV and freshmen were both undefeated.

IT WAS Rocket Football night at Freed Field. All 34 of the varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders gathered around with the Granger Rocket Football 49ers cheer squad before the Penn vs. St. Joseph game. The young girls look up to the Penn High School cheerleaders hoping to one day be a part of the squad. SENIORS Aly Holm and Olivia Raine pulled heel stretchers during a time out at the Penn vs. Riley football game at Jackson Field. Along with the seniors, junior Briana Davis stood steadily in a mat. The varsity and junior varsity squads came together during these time-out stunts.

We Run This! What!?

"The season was pretty strong, but the finish was a little disappointing. Winning the NIC was real tight," said Austin Hiatt. The team was led by senior captains, Austin Hiatt and Aaron Fisher. Despite their losses during the season, the team stayed determined and waited as one to finish the season with an 11-5 record and a NIC title. For senior night they wore the same jerseys the state champ team wore almost ten years ago. The retro jerseys brought luck. The Kingsmen battled Marian in the Sectional preliminary game and suffered a heartbreaking defeat. "Our record didn't show what we could actually do. We were better than every team we stepped onto the field with. Unfortunately, soccer is a sport where the best team doesn't always win," said senior captain, Aaron Fisher.

THE STARTING line-up for the Penn Kingsmen was introduced before each game. The starters were shown at St. Pat's Park ready to defeat a local rival, the St. Joseph Indians, by 3-0. AUSTIN HIATT, 12, drove a free kick from outside the area, into the box. HIATT, HUENI, Carpenter, and Walker were a few of the team's contributors that made a tremendous difference throughout the season. Penn had several of their outstanding players nominated for the All-NIC team. Austin Hiatt, named League Player of the Year, and Eric Walker were on the All-NIC first team. On the second team from Penn were Aaron Fisher and Matt Gradeless, and Timmy Wilson was nominated as an honorable mention.

THE BOYS IN BLACK

The Penn boys' JV black and gold teams both had great seasons. Led by coaches, Len Jablonski and Trevor McClements, the Kingsmen were ready for every game and finished with a winning record. The freshman class was very strong this year, as well as the returning sophomores, and with the help of juniors, Weston Craker and Vinnie Deranek, both teams left their mark on the 2008 soccer season. The boys all said they had a lot of fun at every practice and game. "We worked hard but it all paid off," said freshman midfielder, Alex Scholtes. "We won the Angola Tournament and we were tough competition for some varsity teams that we had to play." The JV teams had to face Trinity's varsity team and had a clear victory. Freshman teammate, Taylor Hart, said one of his favorite parts of the season was the bus rides: "Evan would sing 'Piano Man' the whole ride to the game! He's weird," he added, laughing.

SEAN PAULSEN, 10, gave a thumbs up after a teammate made a goal. WESTON CRAKER, 11, laced the ball up the field, WHILE SCOTT GIDMAN, 9, cleared the ball from the opposing team. # PURE DOMINATION

The girls' varsity soccer team completed another strong and dominating season. The team, which finished 16-4-2, made it to semi-state, before suffering a heartbreaking loss on a controversial call against Oulver. The game before, against Westview, coach Mikee Luber arrived late, having just come from the birth of his first child. The strong senior class really carried the team through the tough points in the season, and contributed to another extended post season. Although they didn't make all the way, they stuck together until the end. "Things that kept me going during games were having my teammates give me a high five after a good pass or cheering me on after a mistake," said senior Hayley Alden. "It was good to know that they were there for me no matter what." LeeAnn Kuehn, senior, was named NIC MVP, and Paige Stroinski and Sarah Blaase, both seniors, were named to first team. Second team included Hayley Alden, senior, Sammy Trail and Haley Craig, juniors Alycia Sellers, senior, and Abby Scholtes, sophomore, were recognized as honorable mention.

Ally Scholtes, sophomore, looked at her options down the field. As a center midfielder, she has to know everything that is going on around her.

the next best thing

The girls junior varsity team had a great season, not only remaining undefeated on their home turf but unbeaten after twenty-three games. Whether they were traveling as far as Crown Pointe or as close as Marian High School, the team was always ready to play. "Everybody had the right attitude," said Coach Phil Weber, "we weren't only physically ready but mentally prepared for every game." Weber has been coaching the junior varsity girls' team for three years now and has had incredible success. "We have really become a great team," commented sophomore Molly Sayles. "We loved practice and being together all the time and the bus rides were hilarious." From Sarah Hildebrandt's "slot machine arm" to Dadyn Calderone making the "Wall of Flames" at Wings, the season was an unforgettable experience.

Arnold Palmer was known as one of the most successful players ever to enter the game of golf. He once said that "Golf is deceptively simple and endlessly complicated; it satisfies the soul and frustrates the intellect." The Penn Lady Kingsmen overcame these complications and frustrations only to be greeted with the amazing feeling one gets while playing the game of golf. The team was rewarded for their hard work when seniors Meghan McNerney and Kassy Fernsler, juniors Maggie Willenbrink and Haley Van Es, and freshman Deanna Song made it to state this season, after winning the NIC, regional and sectional championships. The girls finished 11-0, for a thirteenth undefeated season. Song, Van Es and Willenbrink were named to first team NIC, with Fernsler second team and McNerney, honorable mention.

FIVE OF the twelve girls who participated in golf this year posed for a picture after their state competition in Franklin. MAGGIE WILLENBRINK took a swing during the New Prairie Invitational, scoring a memorable 76. SENIOR MEGHAN McNerney received a honorable mention during the All-Northern Indiana Conference this season. ANDREA NIEMIER, senior, medaled in five different matches the season for Penn's JV team. ANDREA LOSIEVSKI also medaled in two this season.

The fall studio theater play, I Never Saw Another Butterfly, starred Stephanie Musser, senior. It was a drama about the issues of the Holocaust. Musser, along with her co-stars, shared the story of the years at Terezin (a Jewish ghetto). The Tech Theater classes and the whole cast and crew spent countless hours helping make this play happen. Each night the cast and crew practiced around two hours to make this production possible. Sarah Puglia, senior, played the role of Iren Synkova, the leader of all the children in Terezin. She was able to keep an optimistic outlook on things and kept the spirits of all the children high.

the KNIGHT GUARD

The theme for last year's marching band show concentrated on Penn High School's 50th year anniversary. The guard dressed up as knights with supporting props like shields and javelins. They spent numerous hours every week and a good portion of their summer vacation outside in the hot sun, dedicated to learning their show and improving their skills. The long hours spent together and their coaches, Krystie Breden and Liz Lakey. Kelsey Collins speaks for all the guard when saying, "I feel like guard is my niche at Penn." All their hard work paid off. It led to a great show this season when they made it past regional and semi-state and placed sixth in state finals.

THE GUARD worked on their own mini "fighting" routines. Improv is encouraged in parts of their show, allowing for freedom and creativity. BIG SMILES, a tall stature, and dramatic movements were necessary in performances so the Guard could express the personality of the show to the spectators sitting at a distance. TO KEEP their long practices fun and exciting, they had spirit days like "Rainbow Day," "Blue Sparkles Day," and "Crazy Sock Day".

"Being a part of this club is a great and rewarding experience." Originally the Interact Club, Key Club started from scratch in 2006 and since has gained dozens of members.

The members of Habitat for Humanity Club helped build homes for needy families around the area. "Habitat is a great way to get involved and you learn a lot of useful skills you can use throughout your life," said president Kim Watson.

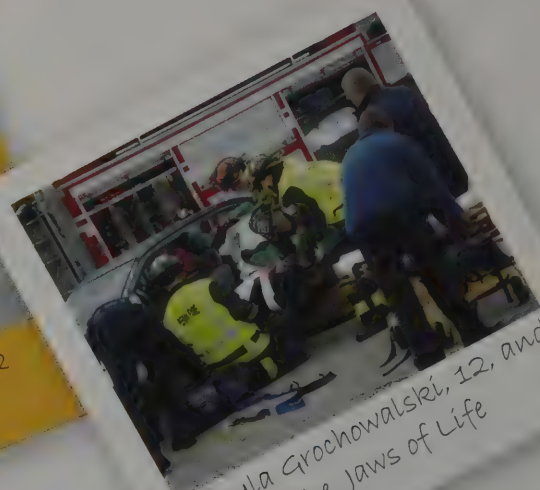

SADD Club was devoted to stop teen drinking and driving. The club set up assemblies to inform and caution students away from the dangerous act.

The Penn Organization of Women (POW) made "bra art" to raise breast cancer awareness. The bras were auctioned at the POW in Pink style show for $40; the entire style show raised $500 for RiverBend Cancer Services. Over $3000 was raised selling pink hair extensions in October. In February, POW delivered valentines to every Penn female, and in March, they celebrated International Women's Day. Male teachers "walked a mile in her shoes" to raise $500 for the YWCA and victims of violence. "POW is a great club that helps girls be proud of who they are," says founding member, Leeann Kuehn.

Angel Ambassadors raised $5000 for the family of James Watson at their "Night in Herald Square" auction in March. The auction was a huge success as the club raised close to $5000. Throughout the year, they helped students in need providing basic necessities for those who can not afford them.

BORN TO RUN

The boys' cross country team gathered for a pre-race cheer before they began a 5K at Elm Road. The Kingsmen runners started their season strong after a summer of tough workouts. It all paid off when varsity runners Anton Crepinsek, Devin Duffy, Kyle Campbell, Zach Johnson, Shane McCoy, Paul Watts, and Alex Borrelli placed third at the Sectional Championship and then later placed sixth at the Regional meet. Although they wanted to make it further in the tournament as a team, senior Anton Crepinsek continued to compete in Semi-State at I.P.F.W. Crepinsek achieved his best time of 16:34 and placed 32nd overall. The Kingsmen placed fifth at the Northern Indiana Conference and was awarded Honorable Mention to freshman Zach Johnson and sophomore Devin Duffy. Anton Crepinsek was named First Team.

PARDON our DUST

Someone once said, "In running, it doesn't matter whether you come in first, in the middle of the pack, or last. You can say 'I have finished.' There is a lot of satisfaction in that." The Running Lady Kingstons began their season on a winning streak. They finished strong whether it was hot or cold, rain or shine. Pushing through the pain, and praying for the best, the girls performed to their ultimate potential, bringing their times down, and their spirits up. The turnout of the season was a major success when Junior Brenna Gonderman was able to run her way into semi-state. The Penn Lady Kingstons receiving the opportunity to make it as far as they did is an accomplishment all in itself.

BRENNA Gonderman, junior, leads the pack during the Oxbow meet against Elkhart and Clay.

THE running lady Kingstons began their chant before the start of the meet. It has always been a tradition for the girls to come up with some sort of uplifting chant to get them pumped before a meet. # Setting Up For Success

The Penn Kingsmen varsity volleyball team finished the season at regionals against Elkhart Memorial with a final record of 30-8. They won Sectional champions for the fifth time and also were named NIC Conference Champions. The young team had only two seniors on the roster. Senior Lindsey Miller and sophomore Lexie Pawlik made the All-Northern Indiana Conference first team. Juniors Kelly Cole and Katie Kurth were picked for the second team. Coach Lisa Pawlik told the South Bend Tribune that "To make it to the final eight from where we started, no one can take that from these girls." The team was coached by head coach Pawlik, and assistant coaches Maureen Hale and John Sovinski.

"Vroom vroom vroom!" Penn's junior varsity volleyball team huddles together during a break in a game against Concord. "It's a ritual," Kristin Ruoff, sophomore, stated. "Earlier in the year, Coach Adam Marschall told us to put our foot on the gas and to not let up!" This mantra prompted a season-long tradition. While chanting their motto, the girls place their right foot in a circle to rev the engine of team unity and victory. Obviously, this tactic worked, for the team received a 24-9 record.

KRISTIN RUOFF searched for a weak spot in her opponent's formation setting up to serve. BRITTANY BARNETT, on the other hand, had to retire to the sidelines. "Being injured is not a bad thing but not a good thing either, because it's all about supporting the team!" The injured sophomore cheered on her teammates. JORDAN BEEHLER exclaimed, "I HATE SPANDEX!" Despite her dislike of the tiny shorts, Jordan wore her black and gold uniform with pride. The week of homecoming is always a festive time at Penn. To enhance school spirit there were many different events through out the week including pajama day, era day, middle school throw-back day, nerd day and black out. As always, there was toga day for the senior class, an activity which is looked forward to since freshman year. The pep rally was held outside for the first time in decades, and featured a teacher-student race. Before the Penn-Mishawaka game on October 3, 2008, clubs participated in a schoolwide tailgate which included corn hole, ping pong, face painting, free hot dogs, and a DJ. The Kingsmen went on to win against their rivals.

KA-POWDER-PUFF

Powderpuff football has been a tradition at Penn High School for many years. Played during Homecoming week, this game holds a certain amount of prestige for seniors as many fellow students and staff members watched in anticipation to see who would be crowned Powderpuff champion. The chilly weather and rain could not dampen the spirits of the crowd as they faithfully stayed until the very end. Playing with a lot of heart and passion, the first game saw the juniors take on the freshman and in the second game, the seniors battled with the sophomores. It was during the championship game that the seniors and juniors went all out, playing with a fierce determination for the title. In the end the seniors took it all, winning with a score of 8-0. This was the first win for the seniors in all four years of their Powderpuff careers.

A FRESHMAN running back stepped out of bounds while trying to escape the herd of juniors chasing her. Not even the rain could crush the enthusiasm of the seniors during their first game. FRESHMEN SPRINTED out to the field in excitement to play in their very first Powderpuff game. SOPHOMORE NATALIE Weiss pointed to direct her teammates to their positions on the field. JORDAN MELANDER, junior, knelt as she awaited the play. SENIORS JANNA Zimmerman, and Kait Hendershot danced while waiting.

Penn Student Council had a busy year coordinating events and promoting school spirit. They organized student events at Penn, proposed ideas to administration while representing the Penn student body, and still had time for many other extra curricular activities. Student Council had bi-weekly meetings every Thursday morning and "StuCo" executives had weekly meetings. In addition to traditional events such as homecoming, fall and winter spirit weeks, Battle of the Bands, and the pep rally, Student Council organized a huge school-wide Relay for Life team. Junior Eric Walker obtained the rights to use the "LiveStrong" logo on yellow t-shirts and all the proceeds went to the American Cancer Society. Held the weekend before prom and graduation, Penn had a strong showing for the fund-raising event.

Maura Sweeney, Michaela Piatt, and Colette Keller, all 9, danced at the Tailgate.

National Honor Society and sponsor Stacy McCormack inducted new students during the fall and spring ceremonies. Members completed 40 hours of required community service. The society implemented a new recycling program school wide, as well as a tutoring system. They also sponsored blood drives in the fall and spring and sponsored a family during the holiday season. Scholarships were awarded to senior members in the spring with money from the NHS Port-a-Pit fund raiser. As Lou Nanni, vice president for University Relations at Notre Dame, said at the fall induction, "It is a privilege to serve," and NHS members put his words into action.

NHS members Niki Hegyi and Madhura Sundarajan, 12, and Student Council member Sheena Shah, 9, raised money for the Coop family at the Student Council Homecoming Tailgate. Christian Coop is a student at Moran Elementary who has leukemia.

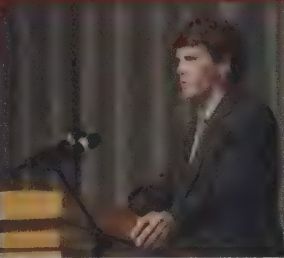

Kalyn Whitaker, Alex Gabrielli, and Allison LeClere, 12, prepared to give blood at the fall blood drive. Over 100 students signed up to donate over 50 units of blood, saving over 100 lives.

Penn.

The Penn tennis team had a fresh start this year, after receiving brand new courts. Led by seniors Vince Beam, Ethan Leiter, and junior Andy Hansen, they had a successful regular season accumulating an 11-4 record, winning the NIC and going 7-0 within conference play. They went on to clinch the sectional title against Adams. After moving on to Regionals, they suffered a tough 3-2 loss to Culver Military Academy. Despite the devastating outcome, Penn number one singles player, Andy Hansen, continued to advance through Indianapolis. Hansen got knocked out in his first match.

POST SEASON honors for the team included placing numerous players onto the NIC all conference team. First team selection included Andy Hansen, while the doubles team of Oliver Gunter-Vince Beam, and singles player Ethan Leiter made it onto the second team. The doubles team of Andrew Bushnell-Brian Hickman received an honorable mention.

getting back in the Game

Penn athletes compete hard and strive to perform at the highest level. However, sometimes injury strikes and the athletes need help getting back in the game. That is when the athletic trainers take charge. Penn's training facilities and trainers are the best around. Trish Irvin and Carl Landis, certified athletic trainers, attended all athletic competitions and were always ready to help out. Not only did they go to games in case of an injury, they also supported all the sports. Junior Haley Craig said, "The trainers are always there when I need them and they are the best part of going to the training room." The two adult trainers were assisted by several volunteer student trainers, who were taught in the summer. The trainers' goals were to get the athletes healthy and back competing as soon as possible. They worked tirelessly behind the scenes to help the athletes, so it is no wonder that their work is appreciated by all.

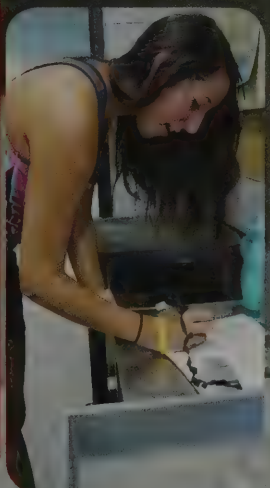

The training room is always packed. In addition to basic taping, the ultrasound machine provides heat therapy for injured muscles.

Senior Julian Moore and Carl Landis

SENIOR JULIAN Moore got his thumb looked at by Carl Landis. Landis must evaluate athletes' injuries so he can treat them properly. SENIOR CROSS country runner Michelle Gaona signed into the training room. Everyone is required to sign-in before getting treatment. TRAINERS CARL Landis and Trish Irvin taped athletes' ankles and forearms before their games that night. Irvin said they used miles of tape each season.

Sophomores Corinne Gennicks, Peyton Coney, and Abby Sroda worked together on their lab in their Chemistry I class. Junior Katie West worked on a charcoal piece for her AP studio art class. The class found different objects around the school to draw on the first few days of school. Mariah Calkins, 10, participated in the Barbie doll bungee jump as an activity for Laura McKenzie's Algebra I class. The class as a whole calculated the distance every doll should travel.

Tony Nhenga, junior, and Elise Stogdill, sophomore, helped each other study for their math test. Chloe Donati and Stacy Brownbridge, both juniors, and Michelle Ferrara, senior, played an educational game during their Advanced Health field trip to Healthworks.

Taylor Ach senior completed his field trip to Healthworks.

Kater Kicker, junior, participated by dressing up in the 1912 Mock election for his US History class. Freshman Kristen Johnson practiced her elaborate dance moves in her Dance I class.

Allison Secaur directed Women's Chorale and Girls' Choir throughout the year's concerts. Maddie Glassford, senior, and her cousin Allie Leonard, are both in Women's Chorale. This is Glassford's first year in choir, and Leonard is one of the few sophomores in Women's Chorale. "It's amazing to be a sophomore in this choir," she said. "It's challenging and so much fun at the same time. I worked hard to be here." Seth Umbaugh, senior, and the rest of the Singing Kingsmen, sing "We Need A Little Christmas."

Stephanie Cardosa, junior, sings the classic holiday song, "Silent Night." Sean MacRae, senior, dances with partner Kelsey Thompson, senior.

"I'm Beautiful."
Brent Holaway

Chamber Choir. The Singing Kingsmen's evening consisted of the "Huron Indian Carol" and "We Need A Little Christmas." The famous Chamber Choir danced and sang five songs this year at the holiday concert, always receiving thunderous applause.

Women's Chorale soloists Mackenzie Jarvis, Taylor Atkins, Maddie Helman, and Abby Murray Vachon harmonized during "Winterlight."

The winter concert ended with the combined choirs singing "A Holly Jolly Holiday" and "Peace, Peace." The final song of the concert was the Hallelujah Chorus from "The Messiah," resulting in a standing ovation.

Daniel Howard, senior, reacted during warm up for the Winter and Alumni concert in December. Ariel Garcia, senior, played her violin. Garcia was very calm when it came to playing in front of a large audience. The brass section was excited for this concert to show the Alumni that the music was still as challenging as they remembered. Kevin Templin, senior, gave the camera a great pose in his tux during warm ups. The trumpet section focused while they played "Sleigh Ride" in practice.

Orchestra

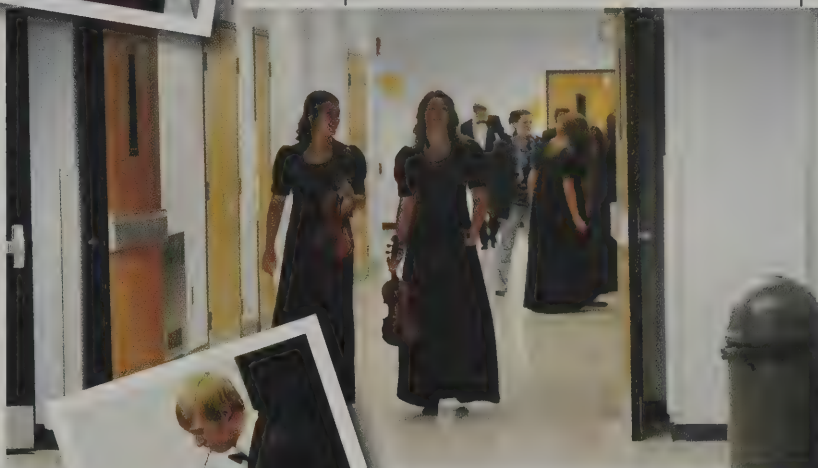

Brad Hipsher, 11

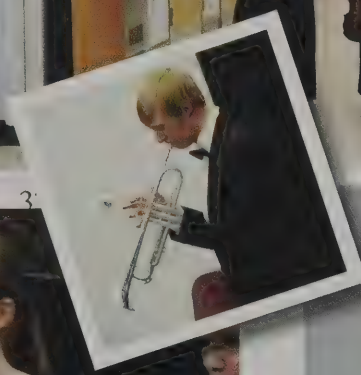

Conductor Lavon Oke got his "okestra" pumped and ready for the big concert on such a cold winter night. Jhonny Dang, junior, rehearsed his violin part before the winter orchestra concert. Dang had been in orchestra ever since he got to Penn High School. Allison LeClere, senior celloist, tuned right before the winter concert. It is key to have everyone in tune; if one person is off the whole orchestra sounds off. Collin Freitag, senior violinist, waits in the orchestra room. Patrick Rasche, senior violinist, has been in the orchestra for all of his four years at Penn. He played in the advanced orchestra.

It's in the Spelling

The motto for the 2008 Spell Bowl season was "Redemption." With that in mind the Penn Spell Bowl team had a spectacular year. The team won its 11th consecutive regional championship, spelling 87 of 90 words correctly. They went on to state scoring a PERFECT 90 of 90 words. They won the title of co-state champions with Martinsville. This win was Penn's ninth state championship, more than any other school in spell bowl history. This win was also more than any other athletic or academic team in Penn High School history. They finished out the season with an 87-0-1 record.

"In a typical audition process, you read a couple scenes, give it all ya got, and hope that you did well. Once you do that, you just wait and hope you make it."

t With You

This 1930's play had an underlying idea of love. This love and passion was the hook of the comedy. Each crew member put in over 100 hours to make this production possible. Sophomore Abby Murray Vachon played the main role of Alice Sycamore, a young woman who finds a fiancé, Tony Kirby, played by senior Seth Umbaugh. Alice worries that her fiancé's family will not approve of her own unusual, but very loving, family. Grandpa (Spencer Mans, senior) helped everyone realize what really matters, and Alice's parents, played by Gabe Hardy and Megan Garry, made friends with their in-laws to be, the Kirbys, played by Sean MacRae and Taylor Leigh Klinger. Throughout this play the entire cast helped convey just how important a family's love is.

New Paving Rhodes

The Penn boys' varsity basketball team finished their season with a record of 7-12. This year they were led by new coach, Penn graduate Al Rhodes. Rhodes was liked by the team because of his teaching abilities and his new offensive style. Junior Matt Price said, "The season was fun, but didn't end how we wanted it to. We will work in the off-season and get ready for next year." The guys learned to play together and went by the motto, "Be an old bull, not a young bull." Tommy Korth and Alex Marsh were the only seniors on the team. Valparaiso-bound Korth finished his Penn career with 100 points. Their teammates considered them the leaders and looked to them for inspiration during the games. When asked about the season, Marsh explained, "It was great, let's do it again."

The Penn boys' basketball team huddled together before a game. They would always circle up before the tip off. During these times, they would talk about the final game plan and get mentally prepared.

Tommy Korth, 12

TOMMY KORTH, senior, threw a no-look pass to the wing after being stopped by a Jimtown defender. As a point guard, it was Korth's job to distribute the ball and make plays. JORDAN BRADY, junior, went up strong under the hoop. ALEX HENDERSON, junior, ran out with the team during warmups. FRESHMAN JEFF LADIG looked to dribble penetrate during a game. MATT PRICE, 11, struggled before shooting a free throw. He would always dribble three times before shooting.

PICK N' ROLL

Both the freshmen and the junior varsity boys' basketball teams had successful seasons. The junior varsity team remained undefeated, dominating the play and winning 18 straight games. They attacked and defended as one and had exceptional team chemistry. Meanwhile, the freshman team followed in the footsteps of their leaders, finishing with a 16-5 record. "We're all really close," said freshman player, Gabe Frucci. "Our team is a bunch of jokesters, and we could never take each other seriously." The team was serious, however, in their game against Elkhart Memorial when they beat the 17-1 rivals. "We really worked together and pulled off an awesome win!" said Frucci.

"Straight from the horse's mouth." This was one of a few quotes that coach Al Rhodes would tell his players. According to many of them, they never understood his little phrases, this one included. "My favorite game would have to be the Concord game," said Nate Laidig, sophomore. "It was an intense game and we won with a last second basket."

HOT SHOTS

The Penn Lady Kingsmen had a fantastic season, finishing off with a 17-5 record for the 2008-09 season and a 7-1 record in the NIC. The girls had a lot of fun this year, from the FUN song from SpongeBob to Meisha to "It's the rims, coach." This year truly was unforgettable. Terry Tulchinsky came out of retirement to coach the team, which was led by two seniors, the Division I-bound Kelsey Reynolds (Boston College) and Lily Svete (University of Florida). Both seniors scored over 1000 points in their four years at Penn, scoring an average of around 20 points each game. Reynolds, shown below getting her 1000th point game ball from athletic director Ben Karasiak, summed up everyone's thoughts and feelings when saying, "This season was hard to put into words because it was wild, crazy and unexpected."

SENIOR LILY SVETE concentrated when making a shot. Svete stated that "We always act like we are on a roller coaster when we go over speed bumps when we get back from away games." ALEX MORTON, freshman, chased after a loose ball. SOPHOMORE KATIE HUSBAND bounced the ball away from her Mishawaka opponent. JUNIOR LAUREN RICE centered the ball before shooting a basket.

Dribble... Shoot... SCORE!

The girls' JV basketball team ended their season with an astonishing record and with the honorary title of Penn Classic JV Champs. Coach Kaniewski stated, "This season was unbelievable. I am so proud of my team because they worked so hard every day and bought into the team concept. We were successful because we played tenacious team defense and everyone was unselfish across the board. These ladies will have the opportunity to do great things for Penn basketball in the near future." The freshman team had a close record of 15-2, which they achieved because of their dedication and commitment to the team and the love of the game.

Got Spirit? Let's hear it!

This basketball season was very different for the Penn High School basketball cheerleaders. Along with two new coaches, Rita Szweda (varsity) and Christine Crook (freshmen), the squads were put together differently as well. This year freshmen were able to make the junior varsity squad and sophomores were able to make the varsity squad. Through all of these changes, the squads still stayed strong and cheered hard all through the season. BELOW the freshman girls show their spirit during their halftime performance. # the Dancing Queens

The Competition Poms started off their season winning first place in their division at the Marian meet. The Crawfordsville meet was canceled due to weather conditions. The girls placed first in their division at the Northrop Dance Competition. The girls continued their winning streak by placing first again at the Lake Central Invitational. They also won first place for Regionals at Concord High School. The girls completed their season by placing third at state. Now that's something to brag about.

Alicia Latimer, senior, said, "Danielle Reid was my biggest inspiration. She was sick the first half of the season and came to practice with a big smile. I'm proud she is my captain."

"Our team has bonded so well that they are beginning to feel like sisters," said Lilia Maxwell, senior.

Ali Minegar, sophomore, said, "Before every game or competition, we always did a cheer to get us pumped up!"

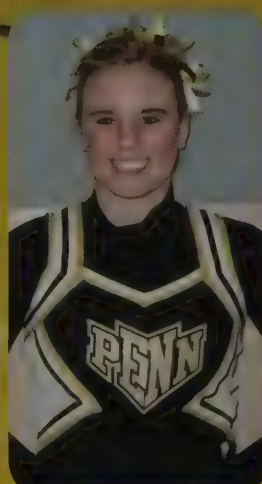

Team captain Danielle Reid, senior, said, "I think true dancers never stop dancing. It's just part of who they are."

Here to put on a SHOW

The Penn varsity and junior varsity poms squad put countless hours into perfecting every routine, every step, and every pirouette. Through the eleven basketball games the girls never faltered and their performance proved it. The poms squad was not restricted to only basketball games though, as they lent their helping hands and taught numerous dance camps throughout the entire year. In addition to holding camps for kids, the dancers themselves attended NDA camps, which consisted of three eight hour days during the summer. Although poms put in over six hours of effort into each game, the girls did manage to have fun. This year the Penn Poms team performed in the Clay High School Showcase which was part of a charity program that collected donations for Hannah's House and other agencies.

COLETTE KELLER, freshman, squatted down during one of her first performances on the Penn Poms Squad. TAYLOR EPLEY, freshman, helped jump up the crowd during half time with a favorite's dance. SAM SCOTT, junior, skated to the crowd as the varsity dancers finished out their routine. PRISCILLA GAGNA, sophomore, grinned as the JV dance came to a close.

Throughout the 2008-2009 school year, Penn was graced with the presence of nineteen foreign exchange students. These students, coming from four of the seven continents, brought along with them their toothpaste, favorite T-shirts, and also their culture. These cultures were not all too different from our own; many students said that they had watched American television, sang American songs, and wore clothes similar to Americans back home. This is not to say though, that there weren't differences. Sixteen of the nineteen foreign exchange students claimed to dislike peanut butter! Roughly the same amount stated that they disliked many of the foods offered in the States. "It's all very greasy," said Seina Kashiwagi of Japan, "it makes me fart!" Alejandro Silva agreed, "Taco Bell is nothing like real Mexican food." He laughed though, "But I really am enjoying my time here." This seemed to be a common idea amongst the students. "I expected a lot of people to be really obese, but it's just not that way," said Leo Chaise from France. Sure, stereotypes exist, but that's why many of the students wanted to visit our country: to learn more about our culture, understand our language, and bridge the gap that the borders create.

Theatre

Seven directors, four writers, and thirty-three actors toiled for thirty-two days, practicing two hours almost every weekday, in order to present six theatrical masterpieces. The majority of those skits were written by Penn students themselves: Samantha Pugia's "A Day on Sunset Street"; Sam Dixon's "In the Amusement Park Break Room"; Matthew Blum's "On Screen"; and Nicole Wagoner's "The Major." (Two other plays were performed, written by non-Penn students: "Sure Thing" and "Wanda's Visit.") Plays showed off creativity and talent fostered within Penn walls. "It took about a week," said Billie regarding to writing his script, "but it's worth it--it's really neat to see the actors bring my story to life--especially with their body language." Lauryn Wiseman concurred, "Being on stage makes me feel like a whole different person and I'm not myself; my normal self is none of that." This seemed to be the consensus among the participants of the after school activity.

Shorts

The extraordinarily hard work and long hours that they put in certainly paid off when the actors got on stage in front of a crowd. Alexis Hornback's noteworthy performance with Nathan Chamberlin in "Wanda's Visit" resulted in roaring laughter from the audience. In the rare event of a forgotten line, the actors would simply improvise. This project, with its spontaneity along with a dedicated enthusiasm towards theatre will potentially propel these young actors towards future careers on Broadway. Even throughout the most intense rehearsals, they remained joyful with one another. Hilarious memories developed, such as the unforgettable moment when Lindsey Meekhof, from "The Major", was overcome by a deep theatrical passion and broke a wooden chair. It was that humor and on-stage flair that made the theatre shorts a definite success.

Reasons for joining speech, debate and mock trial varied among the numerous students. From hopes of developing skills for their future careers to bribery of pizza and candy, a large group of intelligent Penn students worked for months to prepare for competitions. "They are always very unpredictable," said Florence Chen, sophomore and speech and debate member. "Most people don't know how much effort and time is needed to do well," confirmed Casey Reinhardt of Mock Trial, "but it's so worth it." Amidst their constant studying, closeness and humor emerged. For example, several older "Varsity" members referred to the freshmen as "Little Ducklings". With their talent, creativity, and the aid of various mentors, all groups exceeded expectations of their opponents, teachers, and of themselves. The majority of the surveyed members will be returning for the upcoming season.

H<sub>2</sub>O: "Two parts heart, one part obsession." The boys swim team had it all this season with a 94-92 win over Riley for the NIC Championship title. Although the team lost last year's seniors, they welcomed newcomers with open arms. In close meets, it was the team's depth that made all the difference. Captains Reed Schrad, Ki Prokrum, and Sam Lewin led the team to a successful season. Their high energy and hard work helped the team get through the two-a-day practices and winter break training. The team also welcomed back Coach Jess Preston, and were overjoyed in Preston's return as Head Coach. "It's a really good experience," said Trevor Johnson, sophomore. "The team is like one big family, and it teaches you discipline."

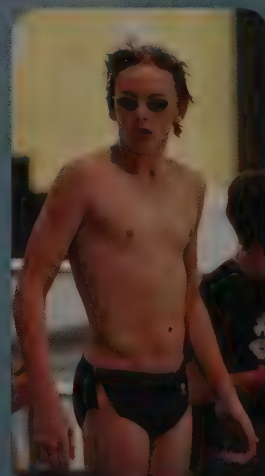

JUNIOR JOSH Coquillard finished first in the 100 yard butterfly at Sectionals, earning a trip to compete in the State Championships. Penn's top diver, Sam Lewin, earned NIC second team spot in diving. Several swimmers were part of the honorable mention team as well, including: Dominio Vernasco, Connor Shearer, Josh Coquillard, and Ki Prokrum in the 200 medley relay; Kristian Lentine in diving; Dominio Vernasco in the 100 butterfly and 100 breaststroke; Josh Coquillard in the 100 freestyle; and Nico Chettleburgh in the 100 backstroke.

The Penn girls' swimming and diving team had a successful season. The team was NIC and sectional champions and went on to compete at the state championship meet. The team finished the season with only one loss, after falling to Northridge early in the season. The team also defeated Munster, something that has not been done in a long time. Katie Grunawalt, senior, placed third at the state meet. Nikki Hubbard, junior, finished fifth in the 100-yard breaststroke and ninth in the 100 butterfly. Penn dominated the NIC, with nine of the 12 first team spots belonging to the Kingsmen. Hubbard was co-MVP. Grunawalt, juniors Hayley Campeau and Holly DeSchepper, sophomores Katie McDonough, Hannah Meekstroth, Shannon Reid, and Nicole Schrad, and freshman Sarah Coyne rounded out the first team.

The girls held hands and walked on the deck as a team.

PIN IT TO WIN IT

With Coach Brad Harper in his second year as head coach, the Penn wrestling team completed another highly successful season. Throughout the year, the Kingsmen wrestlers compiled a 17-2 record, along with numerous top finishes in tournaments. During the post season, the Kingsmen posted a second place finish at sectionals, and advanced 11 wrestlers to regionals. Sophomore Alex Gregory made it to state, and finished fourth in the 112 pound weight class. Although they are graduating four senior starters, the future looks bright for Coach Harper and the Kingsmen.

STICK IT to the mat.

The Penn JV wrestling team finished off the year with a great season. The overall record was 22-2, ending with the Junior Varsity Super Dual meet hosted at Penn including many different schools in our area. Throughout their season, the team had many tournaments beginning on Saturday mornings and lasting most of the day. Freshman Ben Varner said, "The tourneys and practice were definitely hard, but it's worth everything for the feeling of winning a match." Sophomore Sarah Hildebrandt said being a girl wrestler "psychs guys out--and even though they may be stronger, being a girl is an advantage because guys will get nervous." When not wrestling, the JV team did a tremendous job of supporting their varsity teammates.

No Guts No Glory

The 2008-2009 club hockey teams managed to finish the season with an exceptional record. Seniors Philip Augsburger, Max Campbell, Than Davidson, Matt Hiss, Bryan Switalski, Matt Wetzel, and Matt Wheeler each played a vital part in leading their teams to success. Despite the ups and downs each team experienced, they pushed their way through the season, encountering obstacles that brought them closer together, making them stronger than they could have imagined. With Gold's record of 30-14-5 and the team proved to themselves and to others that they had what it took to pose a difficult challenge for their competitors.

Austin Witmer, along his date from Mishawaka High, with Jazmin Terhorst and Garret Spencer, all seniors, "just dance; it's gonna be okay, spin that record, babe!"

"Cheese!" Gera Arnold and Laura Gentry, both sophomore took a breather for a quick second to give their dancing muscles a rest. Recharging and recuperating were needed so they could bust it out again later.

Lige Bostic, junior, showed off his sweet skills on the dance floor for all the ladies watching. "Everybody knows it ain't tricken' if you got it," as the rapper T.I. would say.

This year's Talent Show was a huge success. With the bright lights and anxious eyes, the first one to perform must have been our acrobat, Dawnette Reardon, freshman, on the show singing "Unfaithful." She stated her backstage experience was "scary" but all the people on the other side of the curtain felt my heart beating." Lauren Zimmerman, senior, was second to perform an outfit and solo titled "Smash Into You." Red Junior, made the crowd laugh with her hip hop routine. Kyle Kuhlman and Tess performed a duet from High School Musical Three, called "Just Wanna Be With You." Ladies Will Swing redefined dance with a unique and impressive hip hop dance routine. Jazzmine Washington, sophomore and member of the dance group, "Haired Again," prepared the show. "We stayed after school and practiced all day to be ready," she said. Following that act, Matt Miller, senior, sang a solo titled "Bed." Seniors Seth Wambaugh and Damon Frisk performed an acoustic pop duet titled "City Dreams." By the time the show ended, although said, "I think the best part of the show is hearing the wild roar from the audience when finished, knowing that we were capable of giving people with that much entertainment." Gabe Hardy and Abigail Murray Vaehon, both juniors, did a hilarious remake of the SNL skit "Go Spartans," and won second place. Following their act, seniors Jake Hueni and Nate Chamberlin performed one of their original songs in their band Poets and Posters. Nate Chamberlin and Miller joined each on stage and sang, "I Don't Be Friends." Olivia Paris, junior, got crowd riled up again with her lip-synching the week's Movietown hit song, "Robiostar." Kuhlman and Grace Barnes ended the show with a hilarious dance to the song, "No Air," winning 11th. Nicole Wagner and Spencer Evans, seniors, co-hosted the show. Third place was awarded to Zimmerman and Miller. The People's Choice Award was a tie between Umbaugh and Frick, and Hardy and Murray Vaehon.

110 Concert Band

The Concert Band dedicated many hours of practice to creating the best music possible. Concert band is a combination of woodwind, brass, and percussion instruments. There were many different levels of Concert Band ranging from Freshman Band, Gold Band, Symphonic I, and the top band, Symphonic II. The band members practiced every other day during class, and many hours on their own. Not only did the bands meet during the school day, but they also showed off their skills performing in concerts. They had a Kaleidoscope, Winter, Spring, ISSMA State Qualifier, and the Midwest Convention concert. Concert band required a great deal of work and it paid off.

Amber Mazzocchi, 9

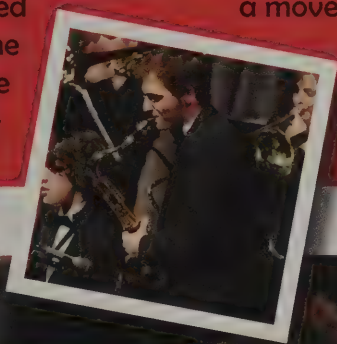

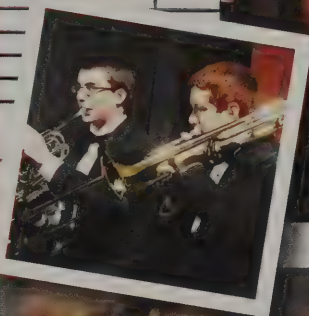

The trombone line performed during the Kaleidoscope program. Jacob Bennet, sophomore, kept rhythm on the timpani as they played the song "Magic For King's Delight." Juliane Zenk, senior, and Heather Hawkins, senior, practiced to get prepared for the different concerts throughout the year. Keaton Bloom and Jason Schmidt, seniors, created beautiful music. Being part of Concert Band, the members formed close friendships with one another.

Katie Ruoff, sophomore, and Katie Hall, sophomore, were all business during one of the concerts. The girls were focused on giving their best and making sure they hit every note.

Like Millie, senior, busted a move while playing his saxophone in a solo performance. The entire band had a successful year.

Sean Hegyi, junior, and Colleen McGrail, sophomore, are part of the Penn Symphonic I band and practiced during class. At the beginning of each day, they went through a warm-up routine to get ready. Shana Bradstreet, sophomore, read her music during the concert. It took the band members anywhere from one to two months to learn a new piece of music.

NICOLE FILIPPONE

Sophomore Nicole Filippone, loved the practices the team had. She said they were so fun because they were more low key than the tournaments. Nicole has bowled two years so far with the team, and can not wait for the next two.

JULIA YODER

Julia Yoder, 12, has participated in Penn Bowling for four years, is a leader, and has bowled since she was eight years old. All of this paid off when she went to semi state for individuals and left having rolled a 624 over a period of three games.

JOSH JAWORSKI

Josh Jaworski, 9, has been bowling since he was five years old. He bowled his best score of 273. Bowling is not as easy as everyone thinks, he said. It has a lot of mental aspects to it, too.

TIFFANY GAVROS

I love all of the competitions that come along with being on the bowling team. We are all very team oriented in what seems like an individual sport, said Tiffany Gavros, 11. Tiffany has only been bowling since her freshman year, but has already reached an impressive score of 243.

To Write Love on Her Arms is a non-profit movement dedicated to presenting hope and finding help for people struggling with depression, addiction, self injury and suicide.

ROBOTICS

Michael Zeiler, 11, tinkered with some parts of the drive train.

Greg Powell, 12, and Nate Cox, 11, worked on the materials needed for the camp that Robotics ran for elementary and middle school children.

During a late night in the shop, Ben Orosz, 11, took a break and recharged his system with a little Coca-Cola.

After six weeks of grueling late nights, extreme commitment, and truckloads of soda, the entire year of preparation paid off. The Robotics team constructed a simple but gnarly design that stomped the competition both at Purdue and Chicago, resulting in a third and second place. Throughout the year, several trials were conducted. But usual methods were thrown out the window. This year team had an extra challenge; when the floor on which their robot was to perform and the competition-mandated wheels made contact, friction was dramatically reduced – it simulated being on the moon. The team put their heads together though. The software experts, Evan Hissey, Blake Disselberger, and Alex Mirowski, all seniors, programmed the robot to move quickly and efficiently. "An interesting feature," said Mirowski, the sensor that vibrates the control board to tell our driver that he is losing friction. It's like a video game controller." That sort of innovation was what set the Black Knights apart from their competitors. Placing second at Nationals in Atlanta proved that the teachings of Jim Langfeldt, the assistance of adult mentors, and the dedication of all Robotics students created the perfect formula for a great success.

Greg Powell, 12, Michael Leathers, 11, Ben Orosz, 11, Kevin Gwilliam, 12, and mentor Tom Evans test ran the robot's manipulator, which was so elegantly named "The Scoop and Puke." The clever engineering of the design included rotating bars covered in rubber grippers that coaxed the playing pieces upward. Once they reached the "mouth" of the machine, the balls were launched outward, scoring points for Team 135.

The Big Brothers Big Sisters program was a service organization that paired Penn students with either elementary or middle school students. The big brothers and sisters in the pair served as role models for their "little." They helped them with their homework, worked on school activities, and played games together.

"This being my third year in the program, I firmly believe in mentoring these young students because they are the future," said Sean Bridges, senior. "It can be tough growing up for some of these boys and girls who have little guidance. Perhaps a role model can help them set off in the right direction early."

The Freshman Mentor program created an environment for freshmen to feel more comfortable in a new setting. At the beginning of the school year the freshmen were assigned a mentor, whose goal was to help the students become acclimated to Penn and all it has to offer.

The Work Experience Program in May placed students in jobs throughout the Penn community, from JoAnn Fabrics to offices at Penn. Students learned valuable workplace skills, including being on time, following directions, and working with others and a boss. At the banquet in May, Brad Harper, physical education teacher and NIC wrestling coach of the year, delivered a motivational speech about always following your dreams.

Hot bands and a dessert buffet--what more could you ask for? Discovery Middle School's jazz band, directed by Murray Weaver, started off the night. Next up was Penn's After School Jazz Orchestra (above), directed by Chris Paulson and Bill Leather. Next, was the Concord High School's Jazz Band. Following them was Penn's Intermediate Jazz band and finishing up the night was Penn's Advanced Jazz Band. Kyle Kuhlman, 12, and Sarah Holaway, 11

The exciting tradition of the American Midwest's state fair was brought to stage at Pe... High School in the musical, State Fair. The play travels with the Frake family as they experience the thrill of the Iowa State Fair in 1946. Leaving behind their strenuous daily lives on the farm for three days, the family gets caught up in the commotion of the midway. Although Mom and Pop both have their eyes on blue ribbons, their son and daughter have their hearts set on their newly found romances. Pop, played by Jake Hueni, senior, bets on his hog, Blue Boy, while Mom, played by Kelsey Thompson, senior, strives to win a ribbon for her mincemeat. Margy, played by Sarah Holaway, junior, falls in love with...

Reporter Pat Gilbert, played by Kyle Kuhlman, senior, leaving her old boyfriend, Sean MacRae, heartbroken. Meanwhile, her brother Wayne, played by Eric Ulrickson, junior, falls for performer Emily Arden, played by Cambræe Reedstrom, junior. With a colorfully realistic set, the play caught the eyes of audience members young and old. A variety of music and animated choreography numbers gave the musical an emotional twist, and received several standing ovations during the performances. Directed by David Dutton and Brent Holaway, a cast of 30 people as well as pit orchestra and stage crew made the performance successful. This year's musical captivated the audience.

SCORING ALL THE RUNS

Strength, fierce determination, and hours of batting practice translated into a successful season for the Kingsmen Varsity baseball team. Led by seniors Garrick Dikos, Mike Carroll, and Ricky Berg, among others, the team powered their way to Penn's eleventh straight NIC title. Dikos shined as a "lights out" pitcher and first baseman, boasting just a 1.54 ERA, a 6-2 record, a .443 batting average, and 43 strikeouts, under the watchful eyes of his father, head coach Greg Dikos. "Garrick has always been a great teammate because he always puts their needs before his," Dikos told the South Bend Tribune. "That's why he's been a joy to coach and I'm not just saying that because he is my son." The No. 3 Kingsmen took an impressive 26-3 record into semifinals, with only one loss in the NIC. Collin Moody and Kellen Cox combined for four RBIs in a 23-2 victory over Riley in the first sectional game.

Covering All the Bases

The boys' junior varsity and freshman teams both proudly finished off the year with a great season of baseball. The teams both proved themselves strong which only means the Penn baseball program has a very bright future in front of them. The teams were led by junior varsity head coach Coach Kominkiewicz, freshman head coach Coach Stanton, and assistant coaches Hestad and Musser. Penn has always had a great reputation in their sport programs and baseball is no exception. The boys, either new to high school sports or not, soon found out that this isn't little league anymore.

HOME OF THE PENN LAD Playing Safe

The Kingsmen varsity softball team had an excellent season under second year coach, Beth Zachary, taking a 26-5 record into Regionals. Jenna Simon, 11, stated, "This was a fun year and the season went like we expected it. We focused on our hitting and have really improved." The team accomplished their goals on the field and grew closer as the year went by. They formed great bonds that were established on and off the field. The team enjoyed team dinners, competing every day, and doing a crazy dance called the "Stanky Leg." The team had two seniors this year, Kayla Hinton and Alicia Banicki, and they were viewed as the leaders of the team. They not only led by example, but they were vocal leaders too. The young team "has really matured and grown," said Zachary. After a 1-3 start, they "stepped up and picked each other up."

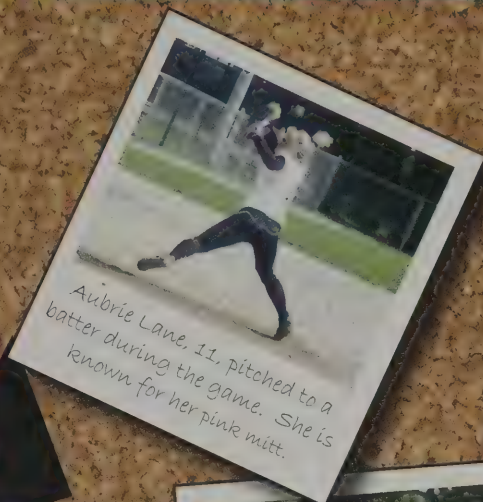

THE PENN varsity softball team stood together while the other team was introduced. LINDSEYMARTIN, 11, was one of the key pitchers this year. Martin and Aubrie Lane alternated as starters for the Kingsmen team. JUNIOR JENNA Simon hustled to first after hitting a shot up the middle. CHOLE DONATI, 11 swung for the fences while she was at bat. SENIOR ALICIA Banicki waited for a pitch during a game. Being a senior, she was considered to be one of the team leaders.

catching the competition

The junior varsity softball team discovered the formula for success early in the season. First-year coaches Javier and Britny Jimenez led the team to victory, with most games ending after a 10 run lead. "As a team we are definitely better than last year," sophomore Jody Carlile said. "We win more and it's more fun." The team's bond helped them on and off the field, resulting in a winning season.

SAM SCHULTZ, 10, gave the ball to pitcher Alex Tashjian, 9, after a strikeout.

Emily Koszyk, 9

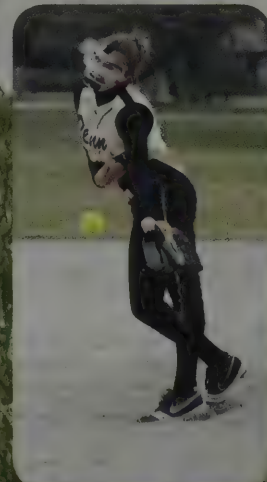

EMILY KOSZYK, 9, slammed the ball to the outfield. MADDIE SMITH, 9, threw the ball back to the pitcher. SAM STEPHENS, 9, fielded a grounder that was hit hard to third base. ALEX TASHJIAN, 9, pitched a fastball to the batter. STEPHANIE HILES, 9, scooped a grounder in the outfield during pre-game warm-ups.

iBall

iBall is a unique experience filled with competition, camaraderie, and heart thumping excitement. With 35 boy teams, and five girl teams, the Lifetime Fitness Center was never a boring place. With a fierce passion for basketball, these teams faced off for the ultimate goal, to be crowned the iBall champion of Penn High. Starting in early January and running through March, iBallers found this a great way to stay in shape and have fun. The teams were ranked each week by the Penn Newspaper classes, which occasionally boosted the esteem of some teams. Junior Aaron Patterson claimed, "People may call us cocky, but I prefer confident." Ranked number one for a majority of the iBall season was Belmont. After winning a tough game against Belmont, Collin Moody, Georgia's star shooter, claimed, "We knew we were really good but we at least expected number one Belmont to show up." After the tough loss to Georgia, Belmont buckled down and went on to win the Men's iBall Championship.

DONNY PERRY, senior, proudly displayed his iBall Most Valuable Player Award. SENIOR MITCH Dobson demonstrated what happens in iBall when a game goes into overtime. Both teams lined up and each player got to take one free throw. If after everyone shoots and there is still a tie, everyone gets to go again. SENIOR MATT Miller showed off his perfect shooting technique. JUNIOR RYAN Callahan dribbled the ball while debating his next move.

Friday, March 13, 2009, was a night to remember for the participants and audience of Battle of the Bands. The energy in the transformed cafeteria was off the charts this year. The five bands who performed fought for first place and a $200 gift card to our local Guitar Center. Julie in Red took home the title and bragging rights. Jack Cleaver, junior, guest appearance of Julie in Red, said it was a great time, "I rapped, and yes, I was jiggy with it!"

The Future Farmers of America (FFA) is a club that prides itself preparing students not only for agricultural careers, but for life. Throughout the year, members of FFA participated in many club related activities. One of the highlights was the National Convention held in Indianapolis during October. More than 55,000 students were at the convention, where employers from all over the country set up a career show. During the convention, students explored the many exhibits and attractions the convention had to offer.

Leading up Penn's Chapter of FFA, agribusiness teacher Mel Lenig did a great job creating a wonderful environment for the students to work in. With year round activities including bonfires, leadership conferences, and workshops, FFA members were always kept busy. Abby Laidig, a senior member of the club, said, "FFA has taught me leadership skills that I couldn't have learned anywhere else." With students taking away valuable skills such as these, Penn's chapter exemplifies the FFA creed to "believe in leadership from ourselves and respect from others." These skills, combined with the sweet blue corduroy jackets, made for a great year in FFA.

Perfecting Our Swings

Joe Bella, Robbie Brown, Kyle Burrow and Grant Spiritoso led the way for the 2009 golfers, with Shane Eagan and Cameron Haramia alternating starting positions. Senior Nick Shappell and a strong group of underclassmen rounded out the ranks. Highlights of the season included Bella medaling at Aberdeen, a difficult course, and Brian LaFreniere, sophomore, medaling at the Valparaiso Invitational. Brown was consistently strong throughout the season. The Kingsmen boasted a 12-3 record going into sectionals, where they hoped to avenge a regular season loss to Marian. A win over Wawassee on their home course was memorable, as was defeating St. Joseph at their second meeting after an earlier loss. As Coach Garrett said, "Main up, boy!"

Don't hate us because we play hard Hate us because we do it in skirts

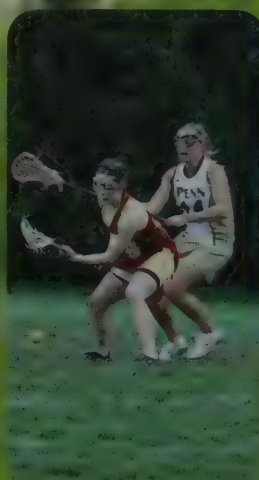

The Penn girls' lacrosse team put together another amazing season. Led by senior captains Sarah Feeley, Brittany Fleckner, Alyssa Priebe, and Nicole Johnson, the girls advanced to the regionals before suffering a defeat to their rivals, Culver. The girls displayed tremendous teamwork and skill. These things helped contribute to the team's second place state ranking during most of the season. "We worked really hard this year, it's unfortunate that it didn't pay off the way we had hoped, but it was still a blast," said senior Brittany Fleckner.

Sarah Feeley, 1

MICHELLE GAONA, senior, sprinted past her defender. ALEX HOSTETLER, senior, rushed in close to defend her opponent. The Penn defense was clutch this year. SENIOR CAPTAIN Brittany Fleckner scooped up the ball while holding off an opposing player. Fleckner was a key part of the squad this year and helped hold together the defense. K-E-N-N, K-E-N-N, S. M-E-N, M-E-N, Kingsmen are the best! P-E-N-N, let's go Penn! The Penn Lady Kingsmen Tennis had an amazing season with an 11-5 record in the regular season. Led by returning seniors and captains Cara Rectanus and Jenna Richman, the team defeated Culver in its semifinal at Leeper Park, but lost to St. Joseph in the regionals. Captain Cara Rectanus said, "Tennis is fantastic, we love each other so much, we also like linking arms every single second." The team bonded very well this season especially with the addition of ten new players. With the help of their close-knit team, the team will continue to show their opponents that if they want a soft serve, they'd have better luck at Dairy Queen, because even the ball knows the result-Penn 1.

FRESHMAN MEREDITH Lee returned a serve with her powerful forehand. SOPHOMORE TAYLOR Walter returned a tough forehand volley. JUNIOR Johanna Manningham focused on placing her serve down the line. # The speeding black bullet 2009 was a strong season for boys' track. The season started with the Penn Quadrangular, followed by a home meet against Warsaw and Adams. Next, the Kingsmen traveled to Chesterton, and blew away the competition. Between the boys' and girls' track teams, Penn took six most valuable player awards and placed first in many events, including the 4 x 1 and pole vault. They finished the regular season off with NIC. Both Kyle Campbell, 12, and his brother, Andrew, 10, finished first in their events. Kyle was the pole vault champion while Andrew became the long jump champion. At sectionals, the 4x400 relay came in second to Washington in a come-from-behind win. The 4x100 team advanced to state, along with DeSean Prentice in high jump and Campbell and Jeff Veal in vault.

Patrick Adkins, 9

Kyle Campbell vaulted 15'4" at sectionals for a school, sectional and field record. Those moving onto regionals in Kokomo included the 4 by 100 team of Andrew Grice, Matt Miller, DeSean Prentice, and Brandon Summers. Others included Ryan Callahan in the 300 hurdles; the 4 by 400 relay team of Ryan Callahan, Kyle Campbell, Trevor Dorn, and Mark Richards; DeSean Prentice with a jump of 6'4" in high jump; Ben Walters in shot put; and Anton Crepinsek in the 3200.

Higher Faster Stronger

The Penn State motto Fortius, Altius, Velocius meaning "faster, higher, and stronger" sums up the 2009 track season for the Lady Kingsmen. As a whole, their depth and strength was a major advantage over the competition, allowing another win at the Kingsmen Invitational. The team also swept the NIC championship scoring a total of 157.5 points. The 3200 relay placed first with a time of 9:39 ran by Sophie Glassford, Brenna Gonderman, Kaitie Martin, and Kaite Husband. Valerie Burns won both the 1600 and 3200 meter events, Alyssa Penland took the 400 meter win, and the battle of the 1600 relay also took first place with a time of 4:07 due to the efforts of Penland, Glassford, Husband, and Natalie Obren. Kait Hendershot placed first in high jump clearing 5'2". Natalie Nagy won pole vault with a 9'6" and M.J. Doan took first in shot put with a 38'8 3/4."

Kaitlyn Redman, 10, competed in the 4 by 100 Meter Hurdles at the Chesterton Relay Meet.

Many girls moved out of sectional and onto regionals, including M.J. Doan; Natalie Obren in 300 low hurdles; Kaitlyn Redman, running the 100 hurdles; the girls 4 by 1 relay team along with the winning 4 by 4 team of Alyssa Penland, Sophie Glassford, Katie Husband, and Natalie Obren; and Natalie Nagy and Lauren Rice, who placed first in the pole vault. Both girls are hoping to move on to the next level and compete at state. As a team, Penn won Sectionals and Regionals for its second straight title. Highlights included Doan's win of the defending regional champion.

big boys

The members of the boys' rugby team not only attained a tremendous amount of talent and dedication, but also created a close-knit community that allowed them to flourish towards bigger goals no matter any obstacle. One might consider the lack of "bigger boys" on the team would have been one of these obstacles, yet despite their smaller statures compared to previous years, the team utilized this aspect as an advantage. "We are a little smaller, but we play faster and more wide-open," Josh Levan told the South Bend Tribune. As was Levan, 21 of the 24 seniors on the team were fourth year returning veterans, who knew each well and used their expertise to guide new underclassmen. "This is the best balanced team I have had," said coach Bart Bottorff. All these factors combined helped the squad to go onto National Playoffs in Pittsburgh, the tenth such trip in the last 11 years.

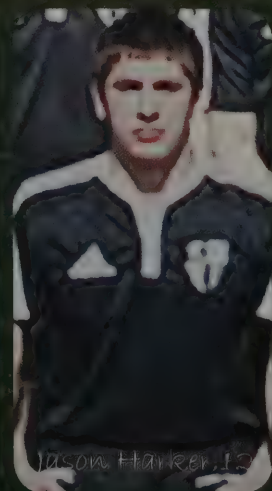

The Penn Rugby Team rucked the other team, Grand Rapids Catholic.

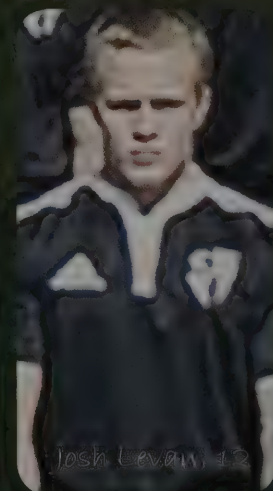

COLIN O'Toole's biggest inspiration was, "Zach Griggs. Some day I want to have chest hair like him." JASON HARKER'S most memorable game was Nationals his junior year: "We were down with five minutes to go in the game and came back and won to take third place." JOSH LEVAN, explained a team tradition: "If we win, we always sing our team song after the game." SENIOR CJ Oakley stated that rugby was worthwhile because, "It gets me in shape and helps create a brotherhood with the other players."

RUGBY GIRLS are

"scrum"tious

The Penn High girls' rugby team suffered several setbacks. Losing many of their star seniors and with a slew of new players this year, the team had their work cut out for them. After a devastating drubbing in their home opener to Noblesville, the girls knew they needed to buckle down and focus. Practicing five times a week, the girls were taught to focus on consistency and their most problematic area, tackling. Although they practiced for many hours a week and withstood the elements, it wasn't enough to save their season. After being blanked out in several games, the girls knew it was over. After all the hard work and effort put into each and every practice, the girls' season was over, finishing with a losing record for the first time in several years. "The season was disappointing, but we had good team bonding," said Grace Mainwaring, sophomore. "The last two games we played with high intensity."

ANN Wyatt, junior, immediately put her hands up after being thrown into the air during a throw in. A throw in is when the ball is thrown back into the playing field. ABBY Ritter, sophomore, awaits the opposing team to kick the ball. JUNIOR Mikki Overstreet, broke through several tackles on her way to scoring a try during the South Bend Mercenaries game. JUNIOR Shelby Hoshaw raced after the players of the fast paced Noblesville team during the second half of their first match.

The Golden

Charlie and the Chocolate Factory was a fun-loving experience for performers and audience alike. The whimsical show not only appealed to children, but also brought parents to see a classic they all grew up with. Senior Chris Clemens played the zany character of Willy Wonka and brought him to life. "Chris embodied the character of Willy. It was amazing and at the same time kind of creepy," stated Nicole Wagoner, a fellow cast member. "you could tell he really enjoyed this role."

Ticket

After the play, the cast members were showered with praises by the audience members. Sometimes, the actors sign autographs for the kids. One little girl thought Connor Shearer, a narrator, was such a big hit, she wanted him all to herself and asked him to be her boyfriend. The age difference was just too great, he had to decline the offer. The show clearly left a lasting impression for this young girl and all her friends.

Every year Penn Juniors learn about Woodstock and other events of the 1960s. Their US History teachers give them the opportunity to recreate the environment at Max Yasgur's farm in Bethel, New York in 1969. At Pennstock there are reenactments of speeches, bands, and protesters. A lot of popular songs from the '60's are sung. To get in the spirit everyone dresses up as hippies, wearing tie-dye shirts, bell bottoms, and peace signs. # Building Trades Building Trades gave student practical experience in the different phases of house construction. The students had the opportunity to build a house near the school. Students gained knowledge and exposure to house wiring, plumbing, heating, concrete and masonry work, painting, dry wall application, landscaping, and carpentry. Every day the first two blocks of school were spent on site, constructing the house. This year the house was in Firefly Meadows off Harrison Road. The house was a three bedroom, two bath ranch with a full basement.

Seniors Keegan Hrybyk, Dylan Kurzar, Dan LeRoy, and juniors Cody Pratt and Brad Scarberry pose next to the stone they constructed for the new Penn community tennis court.

Dancing From

Months of preparation, hours of hard work, many boxes of band-aids, and countless runs in countless pairs of tights led up to the 2009 Dance Classic. This year's performance was themed "occupations." Celebrities, circus performers, car wash attendants, farmers, pilots, astronauts, servers, dentists, and construction workers danced across the stage, soaking up the spotlight. This year, the highly anticipated show incorporated many new aspects. A third level of dance was introduced, Dance Three. Dance students now have the option of participating in Dance One, Dance Two, trying out for Dance Three, and becoming a Student Assistant. Another new effect added was the use of back-lights. The "car wash attendants" props, consisting of buckets of rags, glowed bright orange, pink, and yellow when the lights went off. The men had to put in many extra hours of practice, coming in early to perfect the finale of the show.

Nine To Five

The guys danced to "Working Man's Song" this year. Annually, the guys close the performance, ending it with a high five. The dancers weren't the only students at Penn to put in hours of work for the dance classic. The teachers collaborated on choreographing each move. Costumes were designed, bought, and made. Scene shop spent weeks designing and building the sets, then painting them to create a perfect scene. The show would not have been able to be put on without the set designers or the students operating backstage. Teachers and students came together the last week of school with long rehearsals, sacrificing every one of those hard-to-find spare moments. The result turned out to be that each of those moments was worth the sore feet and tired bodies. The 2009 Penn Dance Classic was a sold-out performance, ending both nights with a standing ovation.

Making Memories

Jordan Hueni, 9

Greg Suetkamp, 10 Ashley Kocsis, 12 and Jacob Kostedt, 10 placed pumpkins on their heads during the Halloween Party. When asked about the class Kocsis said, "this is my favorite class because I always leave with a smile on my face!"

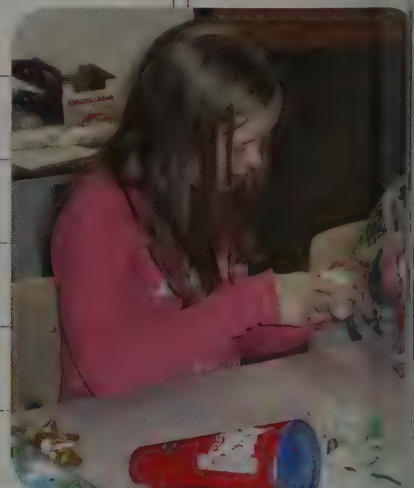

The Peer Leaders worked hard with students this year learning about life skills, math, and reading. However, school was not all studying and work for the Peer Leader students; they also had plenty of fun. When they were not working in the classroom, they enjoyed having holiday parties and Christmas shopping at the mall. The students spent time together and have developed great friendships.

Taylor Hill and Amber Weaver, 10, worked on a project during class. They are smiling and enjoying the time.

Matt Burus, 10, posed for a picture during class. Burus was known for being polite and always opening doors for others.

Amber Weaver, 11, worked diligently to finish the project she was working on. Weaver worked in the Writing Center and was a great help.

Jo Shultz, 10, enjoyed the holiday season at school. She was one of the students who helped out this year in the Peer Leader class.

BJ Wilkes, 9, and Nicole Harkness, 11, posed for a picture during the holiday party in class. Harkness was one of the students who helped out this year in the Peer Leader class.

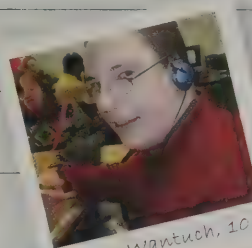

Nicole Pikula, 10, played Halloween Bingo at the Halloween Party. The students enjoyed the game because when they won, they got to eat their Gummy Bears.

Victor Raine, 12, relaxed and ate some treats on the day before holiday break.

Greg Gaver, 9, had a good time learning about new things this year at Penn.

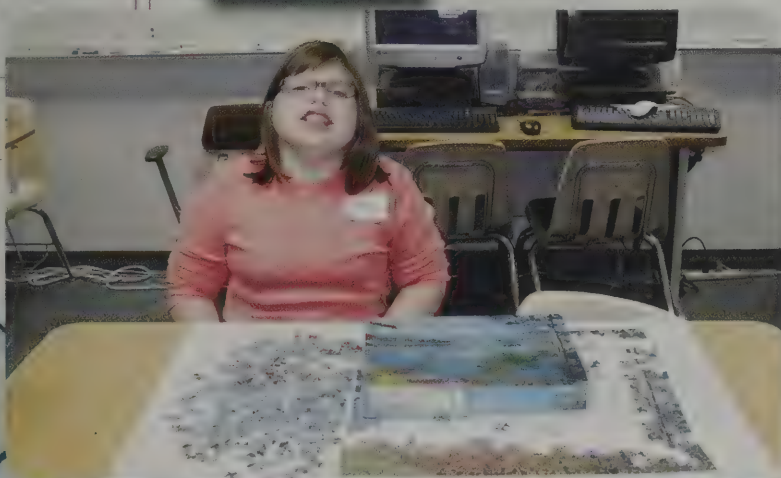

Dan Wantuch, 10

During class the peer leader students are given free time. Dan Wantuch, 10 chose to listen to one of his favorite CD's, NOW. The NOW collection has a variety of popular songs.

Tyran Nelson, 9

After the field trip to the mall, the students wrapped their presents to take home to their families. They picked out the wrapping paper and the name tags especially for each person they gifted.

Kylie Ross, 12, put together many puzzles during the school year. The biggest puzzle that she ever completed was 1,500 pieces! Her favorite class was Animal Science.

The crowd jammed to the Ying Yang Twins.

For a finale, Tony Bodel dipped his fellow senior, Caitie Parten, at the end of a slow song.

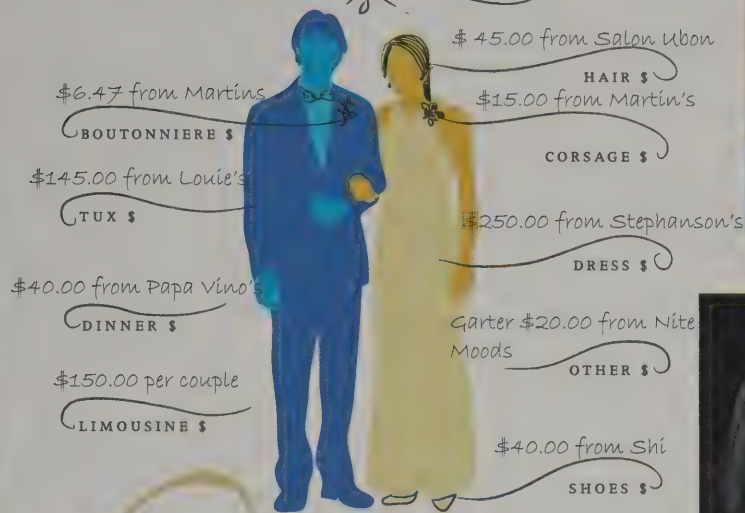

Ignoring his current predicament, German foreign exchange student, Dominik Bitzer, 12, joined his date, Andrea Archias, 12, in a vigorous dance. Despite a broken fibula, he frequently put his crutches aside in order to get the full prom experience.

Jordan Melande, 11, accompanied by Patria Adkins, 9, strutted into the Century Center like superstar, greeting all familiar faces she saw.

Seniors Kyle Campbell and Jenna Richman, the crowned Prom King and Queen, swayed to the tones of Anton Crepinsek's a capella version of "You and Me" by Lifehouse.

Eric Miller, a senior at John Adams High School, joined Janna Zimmerman and Josh Seanor, also seniors. They got down in the middle of the dance floor. Attitudes turned on, swagger at full blast, the trio commanded the stage.

Academic Teams

Quiz Bowl, Knowledge Masters, Future Problem Solvers, Model UN

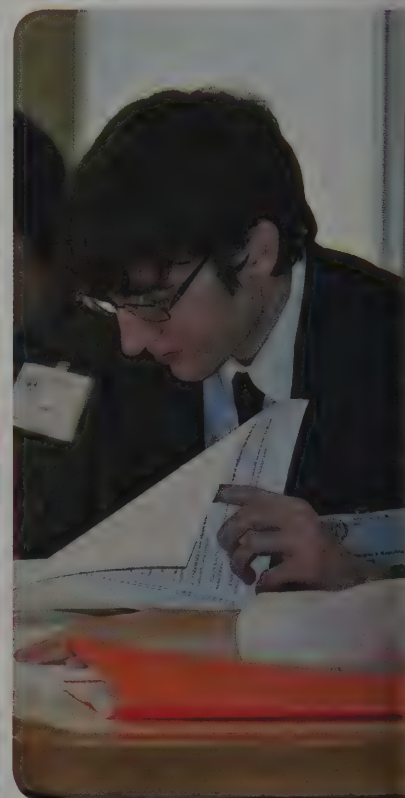

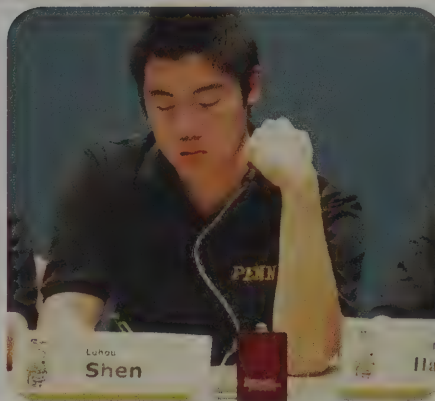

Knowledge Masters was an exhilarating, timed, computerized competition during the school day. Questions covered high school academic areas.

Nick Fischbach concentrated on paperwork information during the Model UN gathering. Seniors Kelli Chupp and Ariel Garcia held up their sign signifying the country they represented during the Model UN simulation.

Brian Harper, senior, and Frances Chen, sophomore, finish a problem that they worked on during their competition. Senior Luhou Shen concentrated hard on answering the next question that he was challenged with.

Quiz Bowl had a varsity and B-team squad that competed against area schools. Four students competed at a time in a four round match on a lookout buzzer system. Ten matches were followed by league tournament play. League leaders were able to participate in state and national competition.

Junior Caitlin Joy pondered about what her response to the question is going to be. Sophomore twins, Francis and Florence Chen concentrate on their work.

ACADEMIC Super BOWL

"Everyone on the teams is really friendly and we are all very serious about the competition."

Samantha Harvey, 9

Penn High School's Academic Super Bowl teams won three of the six categories at the Fort Wayne Dwenger Super Bowl Invitational on Monday, March 16. Penn placed first in Social Studies, English, and Interdisciplinary and second in Math.

Senior Kaiton Bloom diligently researched on his laptop. Senior Andrew Husing and Junior Florence Chen relaxed before a competition.

"I enjoy the high school level of commitment from each team member, and the academic sparring at the state competition."

Chris Bauschka, 11

The social studies team celebrated winning the regional at Mishawaka High on April 21. Social studies team members reviewed before the Warsaw Invitational.

Mitch Parker, Shirin Baradaran, Brian Harper, 12, and Rebecca Wei, and Ivy Yen, 10, proudly held their English ASB ribbons.

Social studies team practices included Sunday practices where students prepared review games to help each other learn.

ENGLISH ASB Row 1: Brian Harper, Mitchell Parker, Sam Leyes. Row 2: Helen Roszkowski, Shrin Baradaran, Justin Villa, Deanna Song, Jim Sauer. Row 3: Rebecca Wel, My Yen.

Brian Harper pointed accusingly to a laughing Mitchell Parker, while a frowning Julaine Zenk looks on. All are seniors. While in biology, Dong-Yo Suh anticipated the upcoming Science match.

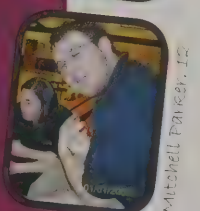

FINE ARTS Helen Roszkowski, Justin Villa, Johnny Zhang, Caleb Waddell, Luhou Shen.

Jack Adams, 10

"I compete for social studies because not only is it a good field to quiz on, but also because it's very interesting and fun to learn."

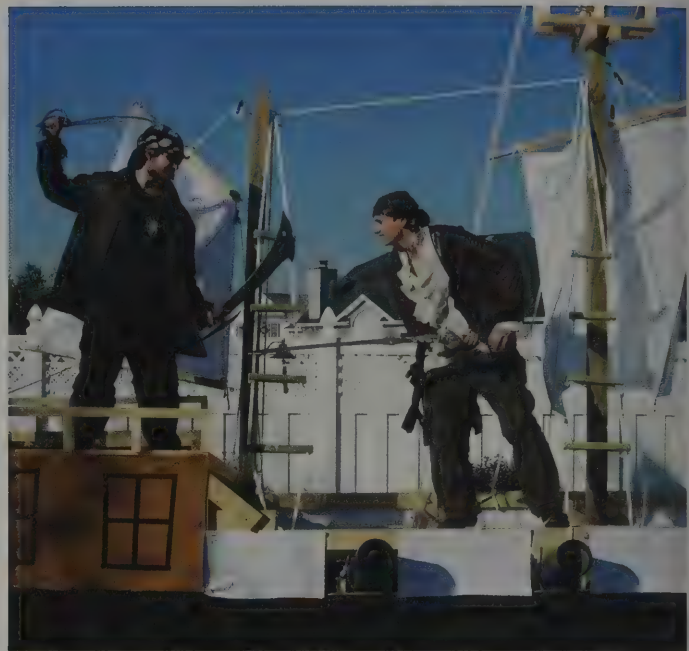

Taylor Cary, 11

Julia Rist, 12, liked to take road trips with her friends during the many breaks from school.

Gavin Fountain and Colin Freitag, 12 made a pirate ship on Halloween that shot out candy to trick or treaters.

W.D.P.

What do Penn Students Do? When they aren't in school OF COURSE!

Many students like to spend the weekend at their friend's or their own lake houses. This group stayed at the Nick Hostetter lake and went canoeing.

Kailyn Meiszberg and Molly Loeffeholz, 10, went to many Notre Dame football games.

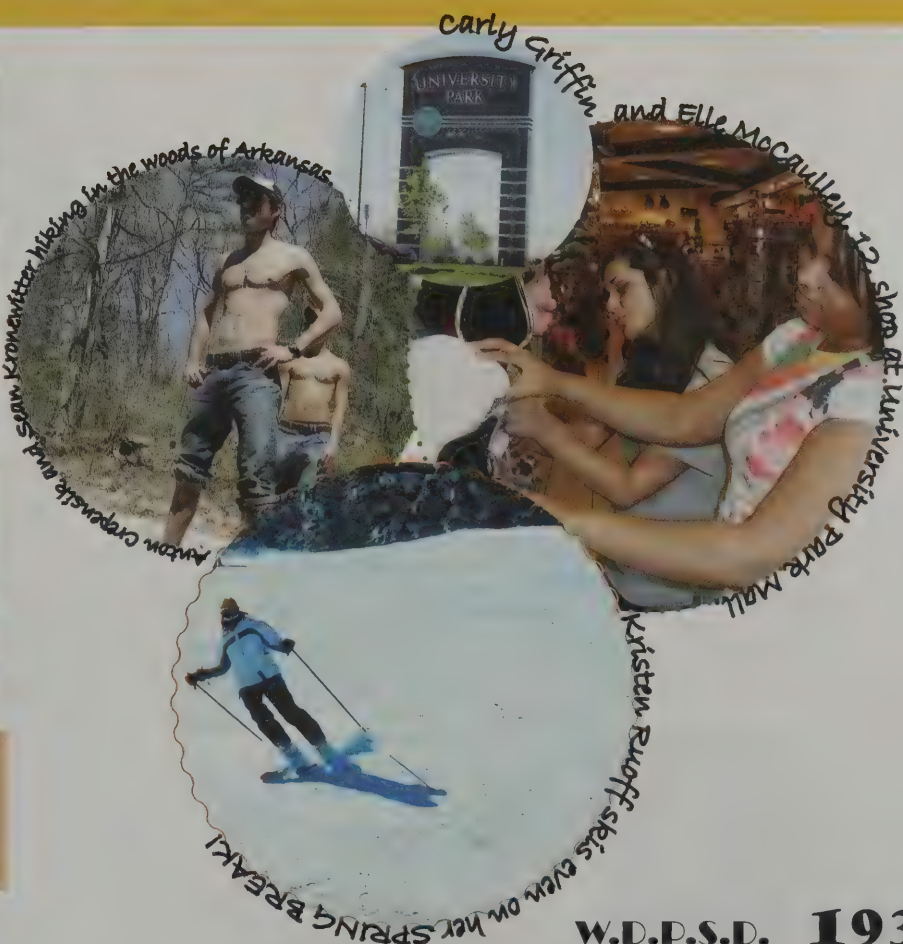

Hilary Horning and Claire Gup, 12, chomped down at Lingers early Monday night for 25 cent wings.

S.D.?.

Penn's Marching Band spent their Spring break in Disney World. Staying involved at Penn in extra curriculars can take you to the most magical place on earth? Guess so!

Elizabeth Dix, German teacher, explained how close her classes have gotten over the months they spent in the classroom. "I come to work every-day to not only teach, but to learn as well and have some fun doing it," she said. "Penn faculty should be proud of the difference we have made!"

Andrea Bedford and David Sult looked over Penn through the numbers of security cameras that keeps Penn safe. A common quote that Mrs. Bedford lives by is, "Treat people the way you want to be treated because you never know when the tables will turn."

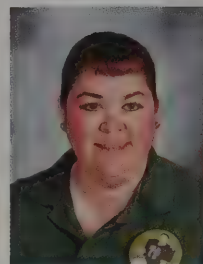

• Mary B. Nicolini displayed a bra decorated with plastic army men from the POW breast cancer awareness project. • Camile McPhee praised a student on his photo project. • Laura Zahner, attendance keeper, worked hard to make sure Penn's students were always in the right place at the right time • Brad Harper tried to impress his PE students with his basketball skills. We'll never know if it actually went in. . . • Physics teacher Les Kistler was iconic with his holiday tree and "Yuletide moments." Students from the past have placed weird "ordaments" to decorate the tree. • Mel Lenig held a guinea pig in his animal friendly class. • Beth Zachary, softball coach and freshman English teacher, prepared her students for the end of semester writing exam on "disappointment." • Candace Clark cheesed on her prep period in between her Psychology classes. • Becky Lutkus posed next to a giggly Tom Gustafson in her Spanish III class. • Jim Sauer used a really big pencil (made by Joann Derbiszewski) on his birthday. • Sue Campbell went all out when decorating Guidance, as always. • Scott Thompson helped senior Brandon Drude with mythology homework.

In Memory of James Watson

...we celebrate the time we had with you. . .

...and mourn your untimely passing.

Meredith Twyman and Kelly McKisick were close friends in PNN. Travis Landuit, Aaron Long and Joey Malott showed their PENN PRIDE at the Homecoming Tailgate in October. Mikey Witous was lifted amongst the student section at the outdoor pep rally to show support for the football team. Chris Gearhart dressed pretty classy for Nerd Day.

Holly DeSchepper leaped in front of the camera after a meet. • Morgan Crane practiced for colorguard after school. • Stephen High paused after tuning his saxophone. • Haley Craig, in the Training room, held what is known as a "STIM" which she would have applied to her muscles to relax them. • Karter Kistler and Kamden Betzer stood non-chalantly after the 1912 Election held in the LGI. • Amanda Cregier cheered for her home team every Friday! • Erin Kearney stood happily before the Homecoming Pep session in October. • Andrew Bushnell "hangs around" during a passing period. • Eric Lawson eagerly played his drum during the pep rally. • Ryan Anderson blushed during a football interview. • Hayley Campeau chanted with her teammates before a swim meet. • Juli Miller and Melissa Fisher were in the vending machine room buying snacks during their lunch.

Community Involvement at Penn

Penn's student body has been dedicated to serving the community and assuring that they gave back whenever possible. Students participated in an array of organizations that emphasized the importance of lending a helping hand. Penn clubs sponsored numerous fund raisers to collect donations for a variety of purposes, including:

~ Pink hair extensions sale, coordinated by the Penn Organization of Women, that raised awareness of breast cancer and donated to RiverBend Cancer Services.

~ Blood drives organized by the National Honor Society that saved lives.

~ Night at Heron's Fall, which benefited the family of senior James Watson.

~ Silver sale, which collected funds for the PHM Foundation and educational grants.

~ Chicken sales organized by many groups to provide deserving graduates with scholarships.

Trainers always donated their time to assist injured sport players.

Anthony Filipski, 12, donated blood at one of the blood drives sponsored by NHS.

Students protested administrative decisions by organizing a "Walk Out".

Dear Zachary,

From the moment you entered our lives, we knew you were special. Your sense of humor and one-liners, even as a toddler, kept us smiling and laughing. We are so proud of the fun-loving, kind, disciplined, and intelligent young man that you have become. Always keep God at your center, love and laughter in your heart, and pray about everything! We love you, Bubbie!

Love, Mom and Dad

*Holly

Max Campbell

Dear Max,

It is very hard to believe that the days when you began school at Madison, and finished at Penn have come and gone so fast. It seems that only yesterday, you were holding on to the back of Robert's jacket, while you two boarded the school bus that took you down the road to Madison School.

And now your facing a new road, alone , and more than ready for College. Robert said, "You used to be the little brother that I would pick on, and now you are the little brother that I depend on, as a best friend. After my accident you stepped up and became more than a brother and a friend, you became my bro, and that was just enough to keep me together". Your sense of humor, passion for life, compassion for others, and courage, have made us so proud of you.

Congratulations, Max!

The faculty of the School of Business & Economics (SB&E) at IU South Bend is devoted to teaching. The achievements of our students are demonstrated by their performance on business field examinations developed by Educational Testing Service.

During spring 2008, 447 undergraduate and 157 MBA programs administered these exams and students from IU South Bend ranked in the top 10 % among undergraduates and MBAs nationwide. The SB&E is also accredited by the AACSB International, a standard less than 10 % of business schools worldwide have attained.

ETS BUSINESS FIELD TEST RESULTS: SPRING 2008

RETURNING STAFF MEMBERS

Publications classes are a great way for Penn students to meet new people and get involved in school events. The yearbook staff works hard all year to produce a final product. The Bittersweet yearbook that follows each school year is a display of creativity in the student body. When documenting events such as sports, academics, and extra-curricular clubs, yearbook members are expected to add flare and personality to give Penn High School students a book to keep forever.

To publish an all-color book for Penn's 50th anniversary, the yearbook class of 2008-2009 held fundraisers. A cell phone drive, a cotton candy tailgate, and working the concession stands at school events helped raise money for this first-time goal—a $120,000 product.

Dear Kingsmen,

We all wake up. Groaning, kinda sore from late nights, tired, excited, freaked that we're late or whatever it is we do. We get up. Trying to remember the dreams we had, or mad because we had none, dreading what might happen this day or the one before that. And we shower. And look at ourselves in the mirror often. Looking at Who we are. Who are we really? Getting ready. Preparing. Forgetting homework, getting dressed. Arming up for the day. Not forgetting anything from the past that might discourage us but just moving forward. And we step forward, step out onto the morning street thinking a million thoughts or almost nothing but where we're walking. Maybe we drive to school or board the bus, share inside jokes, rockin' an iPod to hits and classics, or just watching the sunrise stream behind the trees, fluttering sunlight in our eyes. Then we hit Bittersweet. Where we all come together in this one place for our own reasons. Hang with besties and bffs, bfs and gfs. Meet deadlines for honored clubs or getting into huge fights we can't stop talking about. Or just maybe the day just has something you're waiting for. And we faintly realize that as soon as we touch the grounds of this school we never cease to experience life in an infinite amount of ways that we never will experience anywhere else. And each and every time we gain something so unboundedly sacred from that... we thrive on that. That of which we have in life to understand ourselves in our own interpretation. And exceeding our limitations. Even when before we never knew how to start... and then so we look at that time. Someone is counting down. Freshmen are excited for summer and seniors are crying for forever. And within heartbeats the sacred year ends with that ring... Then nothing matters other than your triumph and your triumphant victories and the memories. It is divine. Why? Because it's the only time of your life that it can be called high school. Where we fail, epic-ally, and then maybe we win, we lose and then we so win. Everything between is what we achieve to become what we are meant to be. And that Kingsmen, will become our greatest of memories for all of our eternity. Forevermore.

LIVES

Erio Walker, 11

Molly Sayles & Jordan Blinn, 10

Seven-time Tour de France winner bicyclist Lance Armstrong has made the vibrant yellow "LIVESTRONG" logo recognizable in the fight against cancer. Junior Erio Walker received permission to use the saying for Penn's Relay for Life campaign, selling over 400 T-shirts to students, staff and parents. All the proceeds went to the American Cancer Society, which sponsors Relay for Life each year. Teams from all over the country participate. For the first time in several years, the Student Council, along with other organizations, including POW, Big Brothers Big Sisters, and the Robotics team formed teams to walk during the relay at Mishawaka High School on May 15 and 16. That weekend was prom weekend, too, and the weekend before graduation, but still several Kingsmen served. "I finally had to send them home," StuCo sponsor Kristine Smith said, "it was thundering and lightning, and we were out there in our little tents."

STRONG

Many people in the Penn community have been touched by the horrors of cancer. Relay for Life allows participants to celebrate the lives of those who have battled cancer. Cancer survivors exemplify their strength when walking which ultimately inspires others to continue to fight. The event is both a remembrance of loved ones who lost their battle with the disease, as well as a celebration of those who are survivors. People Relay because they have been touched by cancer and desperately want to put an end to the disease. Penn supports Relay for Life and remembers those who have passed from direct relations of cancer.

50th ANNIVERSARY

WE ARE THIS LAND THAT IS GILDED ENTIRELY BY THE SUNSHINE BY THE MORNING GOLD.
WE ARE EVERY BRICK, EVERY WALL,
OF MEMORY IN THIS KINGDOM THAT
AND NOW AND FOREVER AND SHOUT ITS
